

A simple framework for understanding how our government really works, and how we can fix it

Money: Big money runs everything in Washington, DC. The answer to all "why" questions in politics is the same. "Why are Democrats so weak?" "Why are Republicans so vicious?" It's because they are paid to be that way.

Corruption: Our so-called "representatives" do not represent us — they represent the billionaires, banks, and mega-corporations. They must be called out, relentlessly, as what they are: corrupt.

Demands: Having a clear list of demands is crucial, and fixing big money in politics and government needs to be at the top. See elevendemands.org/#demands for the list.

Solutions: Flowing from the demands are the solutions. A movement has to be about more than just pointing out all problems we face; it needs to provide a vision of a better world and a path to reaching it. Toward those ends, check out The Eleven-Demands Strategy.
